SOLDIERS DID NOT "SHOOT UP" TOWN

Startling Evidence in Investigation of The Episode by Senator Foraker

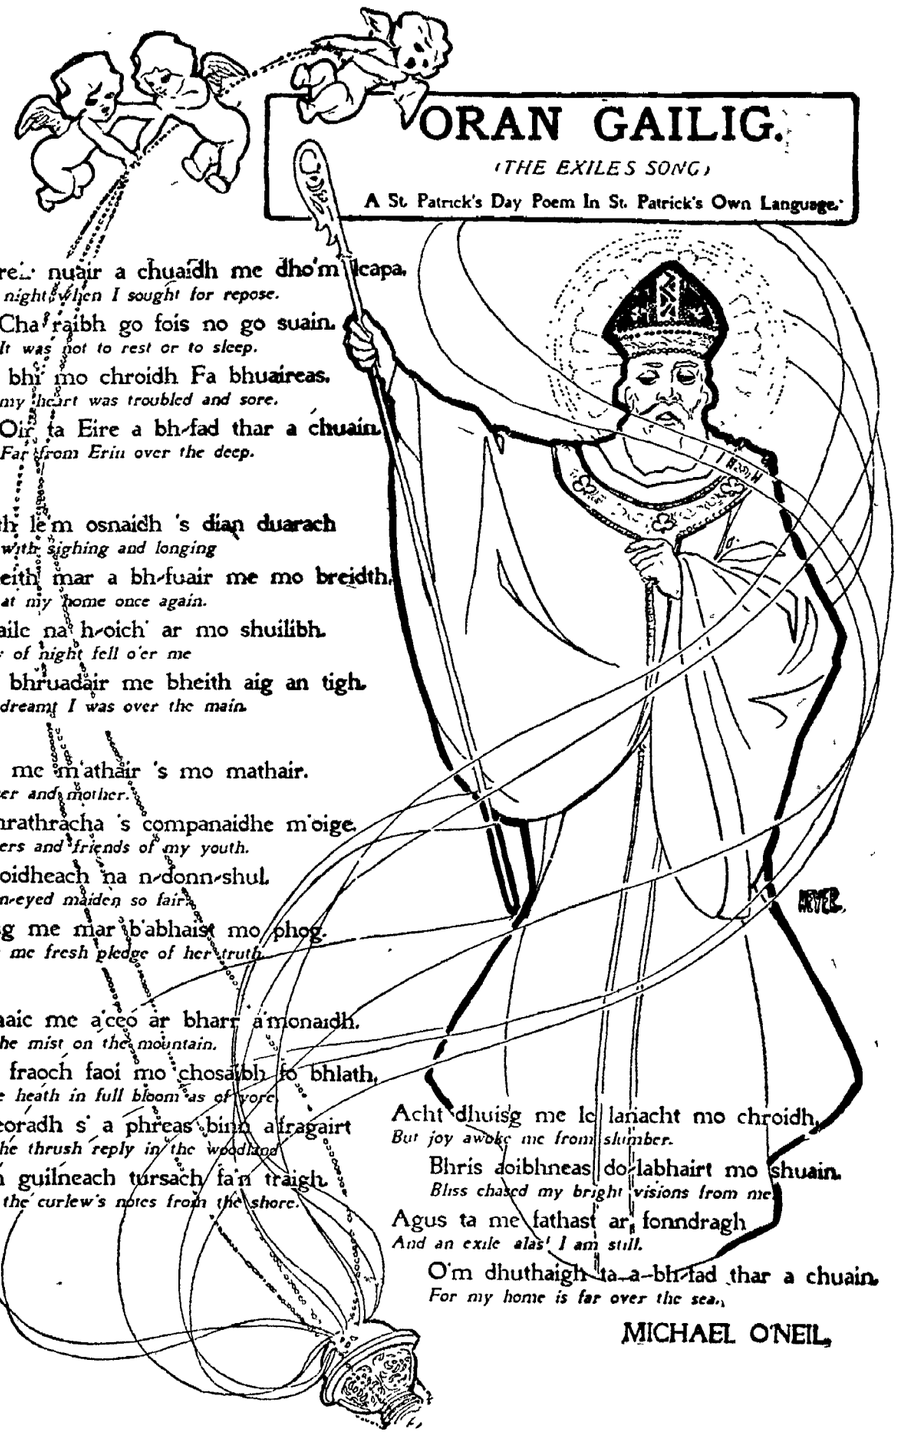

[By Telegraph to The Age]

Washington, March 16.—The best defense of the negro troops yet given was contained in the evidence offered by an eye-witness to many of the incidents connected with the affray at Brownsville, Tex. The man was called by Senator Foraker and was thoroughly cross-examined by the senate committee on military affairs, which is conducting an investigation of the alleged "shooting up" of Brownsville by members of the Twenty-fifth infantry. He was Macias G Tomayo, a Mexican carpenter of Brownsville, who also had the contract for the scavenger work at Fort Brown Mr Tomayo testified that when the shooting began he was working in the rear of "B" barracks. The first shot he said came from the alley about half a block from the reservation, between Elizabeth and Washington streets Another shot was fired almost immediately, and Tomayo quickly extinguished his lantern for fear of being made a target. He said that a fusillade followed, the bullets whistling over the barracks as if fired toward the administration building He thought there were about 20 shots in all. After the volley he said he drove out between B and D barracks toward the administration building. During the firing Tomayo says he is certain that soldiers did not leave the barracks to enter the town nor enter the barracks from the town, but on cross-examination he would not say that it would have been impossible for soldiers to have hidden along the wall in the rear of the outhouses and woodsheds. He was absolutely certain, though, that soldiers could not have fired from the barracks into the town without his seeing the flashes of the guns and hearing them.

On these points the witness was closely cross-questioned by Senators Warner, Frazier, Foster and Overman, but he could not be shaken. He volunteered the statement that when he was examined by Assistant Attorney General Purdy and Major Blocksam, that Mr. Purdy tried to get him to say that the first shot was fired from within the barracks and that he became scared and jumped on his cart and drove away He said that Mr. Purdy confused him, and he answered "yes" once when he meant "no," and that Mr. Purdy told him to wait until he got his stenographer. When the question was again put, said Tomayo, he answered that the first shot came from the alley.

When Senator Foraker insisted on bringing out this testimony, Senator Warner protested, but the Ohio senator declared that he purposed to have made a part of the record the character of the examination of witnesses at former investigations where no chance for cross-examination was given.

Another interesting development was a statement by Senator Foraker that he paid the expenses of a man sent south to interview prospective witnesses.

CHILD ON STAND IN MURDER CASE

Mrs. Bordenkircher's Adopted Child Unable to Testify Because of Tears-The State Not Done

It was a dramatic scene at the court house Saturday morning when the state placed, or tried to place, Helen the little 7-year-old adopted daughter of Mrs. Ida Mae Bordenkircher, on the stand as a witness of the shooting of Levi Bordenkircher.

The child was unable to testify on account of crying. The accused woman, seemed to intuitively know the child was coming for she suddenly left her chair, rushed from the room and met her in the hallway down stairs, and the sounds of weeping almost hysterical, were plainly heard in the court room.

The mother and adopted-child were permitted a half-hour conference at the close of the morning session, in the presence of the Rev. Fr. Synan.

Court adjourned at the noon hour till Monday. The jurors were permitted to go home and will not reassemble till Monday at 1 p. m. Monday morning the court and attorneys will wrestle with the question shall testimony be admitted as to the reputation of the Bordenkircher home.

The attorneys state that the state will hardly rest its case before Tuesday morning. The trial will be lengthened probably by a day or two.

The dramatic climax in the Ida Mae Bordenkircher murder case was reached at the opening of court Saturday morning when Little Helen, aged 7 years, arrived at the court house in the custody of Chief Maple from the Good Shepherd's Home at Columbus where she has been since the fatal occurrence at the Bordenkircher home on Christmas day. One of the most touching scenes the courtroom has ever known took place when Mrs Bordenkircher, the adopted mother of the child, came into the courtroom with Little Helen, both sobbing bitterly.

There had been a delay just after the opening of court as Mr. McDowell for the state stated that one of their witnesses, which they wished to put on before Lieut. Johnston, would be there in a very few minutes. The court granted the wait.

Mrs. Bordenkircher who was sitting with Mrs. Copeland, whispered a word to one of her attorneys, Mr. Glenn, and then got up quietly and left the court room going out the east door. Nobody accompanied her and Judge Voorhees showed signs of nervousness as she was supposed to be in the custody of the sheriff. Mr. McDowell started out to notify the sheriff to watch her. A moment later heartrending sobs were heard in the courtroom. Mrs. Bordenkircher had met Little Helen down in the corridor below and the meeting was a very pathetic one.

Mrs. Bordenkircher had without suspecting that the little one was coming met her in the corridor of the court house and they embraced each other fondly. Undoubtedly the tie between the woman accused of murder and the little girl whom she took to raise is a very strong one. Hitherto Mrs. Bordenkircher had maintained her composure throughout the trial but now her pent up feelings seemed to rush forth like a mighty flood and for a while she was inconsolable.

The little girl was also deeply stirred and cried as though her little heart would break. Mrs. Copeland rushed to the hall and met the mother and daughter and accompanied them into the court room.

Mrs. Bordenkircher took her customary seat and buried her face in her handkerchief. Little Helen was placed in the witness chair. The little girl cast one timid glance in the direction of her mother and then covered her face with her hands and kept her head down ,while her body shook with paroxyms of grief. She was asked how old she was but did not reply.

"She's seven years old" exclaimed Mrs. Bordenkircher who had for the first time lost all control of her feelings. This is the first time she has spoken openly in the court room since the trial commenced. Efforts were made to sooth the little girl's feelings but she cried incessantly. Judge Nicholas tried to relieve the tension by addressing a few words to the little girl but with only moderate effect.

Chief Mapel and Mrs. Copeland removed the little girl's red bonnet and took the fur from around her neck. Helen wears glasses and was dressed in a black dress. A white hair ribbon graced her hair which is short and of auburn hue. She has blue eyes and is a rather winsome looking child with a delicate complexion and timorous look.

Judge Nicholas went over to the witness stand and caressing the child tried to soothe her but could not regain her composure, face the curious eyes which were her from all sides. Mr. suggested a Teddy Bear or other plaything but Judge didn't think that would do any By this time nearly a half had been consumed and not had been elicited from the ness. Mrs. Bordenkircher gained her composure but signs of distress and casional sob.

Judge Voorhees ed that the dently knew that the coming and went, though she is out of the

FLOOD LOSSES REACH MILLIONS

Pittsburg's Pickle---State of Ohio Almost an Island

[By Telegraph to The Age]

Pittsburg, Pa., March 16.—Flood losses in Allegheny county are summarized as follows: Loss in output of steel mills, $3,000,000; loss in output of other industries, $2,000,000; loss in wages of employes, $1,837,000; estimated damage to industrial plants, $2,500,000; total, $9,337,000. With the rapid receding of the Monongahela, Allegheny and Ohio rivers, conditions are fast assuming normal proportions, and the most destructive flood in the history of the city is at an end.

Thirty large blast furnaces in this city are out of commission on account of the flood It is said here that the suspension will cause a scarcity in iron.

The power from the plants of the Allegheny Light company was turned into the trolley wires Friday night in an effort to maintain streetcar service. As a result Pittsburg was in darkness. It is also stated by the management of the Pittsburg Railways company that it will be at least a week before the streetcar system is in order.

Wheeling Cut Off.

Wheeling, W. Va., March 16.—The crest of the flood passed this city before midnight. The city and surrounding towns on both sides of the river are completely cut off. Every foot of Wheeling island is submerged and 7,000 residents have been driven to upper floors. It is estimated 5,000 homes are flooded, affecting 25,000 people. The property loss will reach $500,000. One fatality is reported. Boatmen are charging extortionate prices for rescuing marooned residents. All newspapers have temporarily suspended and last night the city was in darkness.

CONCRETE WALL UP THE RIVER

The state will probably put in a new concrete wall at the Six Mile dam on the Walhonding river, to replace the earth embankment washed out by this freshet. State Engineer Perkins and Member Baldwin of the B. P. W. when here Friday were ferried to Roscoe with Capt. Geidel, took a carriage and went up to Six Mile dam. There is probably 275 feet of the bank washed away and more going. It is estimated that the loss on this division of the canal is $7,000.

THE AGE WILL PUBLISH HER PHOTOGRAPH

Coshocton is Her Home ---Send Her Photograph to This Office

Who is entitled to the crown of the most beautiful woman in Ohio? When she is found will she not be adjudged superior in loveliness to the women chosen as the most beautiful in a score of other states, and therefore win the proud distinction of being the most beautiful woman in the United States?

These questions are to be answered soon, and The Age has decided that this city shall have a voice in their settlement. The honor of Ohio has been placed at stake. And as a part of the great Buckeye commonwealth, the honor of Coshocton is at stake also.

Chicago has found an Illinois woman, who it declares, is the most beautiful in the country. Her picture has been printed in many of the greatest newspapers in the United States, coupled with that announcement. The challenge thus flung out has been promptly taken up by a score of leading newspapers. The New York World entered the lists in behalf of the beautiful women of Manhattan. The Inquirer of Philadelphia proclaimed that it would prove by the beauties of the Quaker City that Chicago's boast was as windy as its reputation. The St. Louis Republic sprang into the contest. So did the Washington Post, the Boston Herald, the Minneapolis News, the San Francisco Call, the Milwaukee Sentinel, the Indianapolis Star and others.

WATER-GUAGE AT FOOT OF MAIN ST.

Enterprising Firm to Erect a Granite Shaft For Floods

There is to be a permanent water guage at the foot of Main street before the next flood comes around. With public spirit that is commendable, the monument firm of Felumlee & Milligan have volunteered to erect a granite shaft at the riverside at the foot of Main street, and Robt. Huff has volunteered to paint a scale thereon. The greatest height, that of 1898, will be marked, as surveyed from the mark on Frank Sells' house at Water street and Main. Then the scale will go down, and show how high the water must be to cover the Lewisville and also Roscoe road, and various heights.

It is a good plan, as nearly every one who goes to see the high water goes to the foot of Main street. It will tell its story at a glance.

Truman Gosnold, of Vantura county, California, who is the owner of about 300 acres of land in Coshocton county, arrived here Friday to spend a couple of weeks looking after his property interests here. Out in California the roads are being placed in the best possible condition. Mr Gosnold think s Coshocton county should do the same.

MANY CAUGHT IN GRAND JURY'S NET

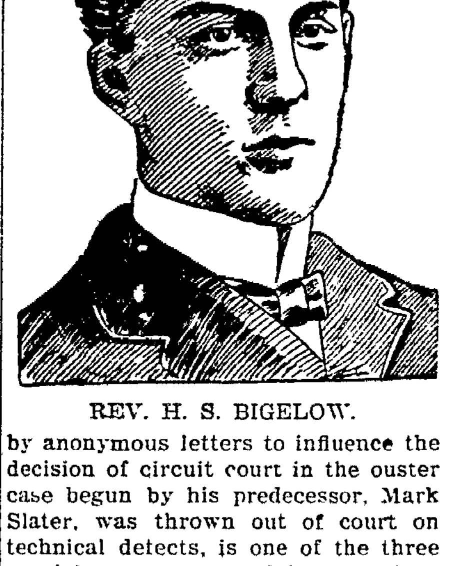

Gathered In All Kinds of Public Officials at Columbus.

WAS NO RESPECTER OF PERSONS

State Printer Was Reindicted On Old Charge—Former Clerk of Supreme Court In the Toils—Columbus Local Officers Haled to Court—Sam Houston On Road Making—State Affairs.

Columbus, O., March 16.—Until there is some abatement of the excitement over indictments returned by the Franklin county grand jury against nine men holding state and local positions, including one former state official and two who formerly held minor positions in the city government, other matters of statewide interest will promptly step into the background when they appear.

No partisanship can be charged to the action of the grand jury, for of the two men indicted in connection with their conduct as state officials, one is a Democrat and the other a Republican. J. W. Johnson, who was reindicted on the charge formerly brought against him, because the first indictment charging him with attempt by anonymous letters to influence the decision of circuit court in the ouster case begun by his predecessor, Mark Slater, was thrown out of court on technical detects, is one of the three surviving appointees of Governor Pattison, and is the Democratic official accused. The present indictment is presumed by the prosecuting attorney to cure the defects found in the first presentment.

Lawson E. Emerson, who resigned recently from the office of clerk of supreme court, was twice elected to that office on the Republican state ticket. Just before his indictment restitution was made to the state of $3,153 found by experts who went over his books to be due from Emerson to the state.

Locally, two members of the Columbus board of public service under indictment are Democrats, Fred J. Immel and Fred Lied; the other member, C. B. Burr, also indicted, is a Republican. Immel and Burr are serving their second terms.

M F. Bramley of the paving company interested in local contracts on which bribery charges were based formerly was a Republican members of the legislature from Cleveland, and was one of the seven Republicans who voted against the election of Marcus A. Hanna to the senate in 1898

The political belief of the minor parties involved, as employes of the paving contractors and appointees of the board of public service, is not of material interest. Irwin, the clerk in the justice of peace courts, and Moriarity, clerk of the board of health, indicted on embezzlement charges, are Republicans.

Having pleaded guilty to the charge of bribery, Nelson Cannon, former employe of the paving company, who started the graft scandal by his public statements and became the chief witness before the grand jury, got off with a fine of $650 and costs on five charges of giving bribes. Arthur Beck, assistant city engineer, who resigned, testified before the grand jury, pleaded guilty to five charges against him of accepting bribes and was fined $1,225 and costs. Alfred Shoemaker, a street inspector, pleaded guilty to three charges of accepting bribes and drew a fine of $200 and costs. The fines were paid. One indictment still hangs over each of these three.

All the other men indicted will fight the charges against them in the courts, beginning with H. C. Lang of the paving company, whose trial was set for March 18.

Emerson had some difficulty in securing bail, pending which he spent several nights and days in jail. His troubles began during the winter and were of a domestic character at first. The day he was placed under arrest a letter came for him notifying him that Mrs. Emerson, who left him at the time of their disagreement, had withdrawn her suit for alimony.

What course attorneys for J. W. Johnson will pursue under the new indictment is not known. They attacked the former indictment on several technical defects, and succeeded in having it nolled. Whether they will attack the new indictment or go to trial awaits developments.

good roads when roads were bad to get the good roads movement started in Ohio. At the good roads convention just held in Pittsburg, with over 2,500 delegates from 38 states, Sam Houston, Ohio's commissioner of highways, was one of the speakers. Among other things Mr. Houston said:

"Soon after the organization of Ohio as a state, that is in 1804, a law was passed providing for and appropriating state money to be expended in the opening of certain specifically named state roads. This act stood alone for nearly a century as the only recognition of the fact that the state owed anything to the locality in the matter of public road improvement, except so far as was necessary to legalize by legislative action the proceedings of local road authorities The movement in the early nineties, the outgrowth of wheel travel, was felt in Ohio and a committee of investigation was named by the general assembly. The matter was dropped with the report of the committee which was adverse, using as expressive of the result of the investigation the words "Masterly inactivity" as desirable on the part of the state. No further action was taken until 1904, when a committee of the legislature called a good roads convention. The result of that convention was the passage of the acts establishing and providing for the operation of a state highway department."

The term of Harry S Griffith, the Mt. Gilead editor, as a member of the board of managers of the state penitentiary, will expire March 31. As the board stands no member of it received appointment from Governor Harris.

Republicans here at Columbus claim that as the law forbidding the appointment of Franklin county people to this board refers to "directors" and the legal name of the board of the penitentiary is board of managers, the law no longer applies to the case, and they will try to have a local man named. It was to get R. M. Rownd, since postmaster of this city, off the board that the law was passed.

The story goes that Frank Cook, former secretary of the board, is doing what he can to defeat the reappointment of Griffith, because of differences that arose between them before Cook resigned.

Rev. Herbert S. Bigelow, Democratic candidate for secretary of state in 1902, now lecturing for the direct legislation league, spent a week in Columbus addressing meetings in favor of the initiative and referendum. The direct legislation league is making an active canvass in behalf of the pending resolution before the legislature to submit to a vote of the people a constitutional amendment for introducing the initiative and referendum in Ohio. This resolution will come up before the legislature next year.

John W. Jones, who has served 12 years as superintendent of the state institution for the deaf and dumb, was re-elected for a term of four years, beginning in September. The new institution will be known as the Starling-Ohio Medical college. Among the 12 incorporators are Dr. W. O. Thompson and Professor W. R. Lazenby of the Ohio State university. Dr. W. O. TINSEL CARDS OBJECTED TO

General orders have been received at the local posoffice forbidding the sending uncovered through the mails of those postal cards that are decorated with bits of sand, tinsel, mica, glass etc

These postal cards are mailable only when they are under cover of envelopes.

The reason for this order is that when the brightly decorated cards are run through stampingg machines the bits of sand, mica, glass etc., is knocked off and the dust arising from them is inhaled by the clerks with serious effects. A number of instances have been brought to the attention of the department where it was claimed that the inhalation of this dust resulted in the death of the operators of stamping machines.

The news — No Pure Drug Cough Cure laws would be needed if all cough cures were like Dr. Shoop's Coguh Cure is — and has been for 20 years. The national law now requires that if any poisons enter into a cough mixture, it must be printed on the label or package. For this reason, mothers, and others, should insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. No poison marks on Dr. Shoop's labels — and none in the medicine, else it must by law be on the label. And it's not only safe, but it is said to be by those who know it best, a truly remarkable cough remedy. Take no chance, particularly with your children. Insist on having carefully the Dr. Shoop package with others and see. No poison marks there! You can always be on the safe side by demanding Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. Simply refuse to accept any other. Stand By the Railroads.

New Orleans, March 16.—An appeal to all southerners to stand by the railroads for the sake of the development of the south was made by W. W. Finley, president of the Southern railway, at a business men's banquet tendered him here. He said: "If railways of the south are to be brought up to the standard required because of expanding business of southern communities, the people of the south must be actuated by the same spirit of co-operation they showed in the early days of railway building, when communities vied with each other in offering inducements for construction. The day for governmental and municipal financial aid for railway lines has passed, and the many millions of dollars that will be required for additional track capacity and terminal facilities must be obtained from private investors."

THE REAL TEST

Of Herpicide Is In Giving It a Thorough Trial.

There is only one test by which to judge of the efficiency of any article and that is by its ability to do that which it is intended to do. Many hair vigors may look nice and smell nice, but the point is—do they eradicate Dandruff and stop falling hair?

No, they do not, but Herpicide does, because it goes to the root of the evil and kills the germ that attacks the papilla from whence the hair gets its life.

Letters from prominent people everywhere are daily proving that Newbro's Herpicide stands the "test of use."

It is a delightful dressing, clear, pure and free from oil or grease.

Do You Like Honest, Square Dealing?

Dr. Pierce's world-famed medicines are put out under the belief that publicity is the best possible guaranty of merit, and that the most intelligent people generally want to know what they take into their stomachs, whether it be as food, drink or medicine. Although it was a bold step to take, and quite out of the usual practice of makers of proprietary medicines, yet Dr. Pierce, some time ago, decided to publish broadcast and on all his bottle-wrappers all the ingredients entering into the composition, or make-up, of his celebrated family medicines. A square deal is therefore assured every one using his medicines, for one knows exactly what he or she is paying for when purchasing them, since every ingredient is published in plain English on the bottle-wrappers and the correctness of the same attested under solemn oath. These several ingredients are selected from among the very best known to medical science for the cure of the various diseases for which these medicines are recommended.

The most eminent and leading medical teachers and writers of all the several schools of practice have endorsed each of the ingredients entering into Dr. Pierce's medicines in the strongest possible terms. The makers of Dr. Pierce's medicines believe that intelligent people do not wish to open their mouths like a lot of young birds and gulp down whatever is presented to them, either in the way of food, drink or medicine, without knowing something of the properties and harmless character of the agents employed. They believe that health is too sacred a heritage to be experimented with, and that people should not take medicines of the composition of which they are kept in ignorance. Dr. Pierce's medicines are made wholly from the roots of plants found growing in the depths of our American forests. They are so compounded that they cannot do harm in any case, even to the most delicate woman or child. By open publicity Dr. Pierce has taken his medicines out of the list of secret nostrums, of doubtful merit, and made them REMEDIES OF KNOWN COMPOSITION. They are therefore, in a class all by themselves, being absolutely and in every sense non-secret.

By this bold step Dr. Pierce has shown that his formulas are of such excellence that he is not afraid to subject them to the fullest scrutiny.

There is a badge of honesty on every bottle of Dr. Pierce's medicines in the full list of its ingredients duly attested as correct under solemn oath.

No other medicines put up for general use through druggists can make claim to any such distinction, and none other than Dr. Pierce's medicines have any such professional endorsement of their ingredients. Such professional endorsement should have far more weight with the afflicted than any amount of lay, or non-professional, endorsement, or testimonials.

Of course, the exact proportion of each ingredient used in Dr. Pierce's medicines as well as the working formula or manner of preparing the same, and the specially devised apparatus and appliances employed in their manufacture, are withheld from publicity that Dr. Pierce's proprietary rights may be fully protected from such unprincipled imitators as might be piratically inclined.

The preparation of these medicines without the use of a drop of alcohol, so generally employed and yet so harmful, in the long run, to most invalids when its use is long continued, even in small doses, cost Dr. Pierce several years of careful study and labor, with the aid of skilled pharmacists and chemists to assist him. Naturally, he does not care to give away his scientific and exact processes for preparing these medicines, but he does want to deal in the most open manner with all his patrons and patients, and under this frank, open and honest way of dealing, they may know exactly what they are taking when using his medicines.

What Do They Cure? This question is often asked concerning Dr. Pierce's two leading medicines, "Golden Medical Discovery" and "Favorite Prescription."

The answer is that "Golden Medical Discovery" is a most potent alterative or blood-purifier, and tonic or invigorator and acts especially favorably in a curative and healing way upon all the mucous lining surfaces as of the nasal passages, throat, bronchial tubes, stomach, bowels and bladder, curing a large per cent. of catarrhal cases whether the disease affects the nasal passages, the throat, larynx, bronchia, stomach (as catarrhal dyspepsia), bowels (as mucous diarrhea), bladder, uterus or other pelvic organs. Even in the chronic or ulcerative stages of these affections, it is often successful in effecting cures.

The "Favorite Prescription" is advised for the cure of one class of diseases only—those peculiar weaknesses, derangements and irregularities incident to women. It is a powerful yet gently acting invigorating tonic and strengthening nervine. For weak, worn-out, over-worked women—no matter what has caused the break-down, "Favorite Prescription" will be found most effective in building up the strength, regulating the womanly functions, subduing pain and bringing about a healthy, vigorous condition of the whole system.

Women suffering from diseases of long standing, are invited to consult Doctor Pierce by letter, free. All correspondence is held as strictly private and sacredly confidential. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser (1000 pages) is sent free on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps for paper-covered, or 31 stamps for cloth-bound copy. Address as above.

The CONQUEST OF CANAAN

By BOOTH TARKINGTON,
Author of "Cherry," "Monsieur Beaucaire," Etc.

Copyright, 1905, by Harper & Brothers

This was Joseph Louden, attorney at law. And to Ariel it was like a new face seen in a flashlight—not at all the face of Joe. The sense of his strangeness, his unfamiliarity in this electrical aspect, overcame her. She was possessed by astonishment. Did she know him so well after all? The strange client had burst in, shaken beyond belief with some passion unknown to her, but Joe, alert and masterful beyond denial, had controlled him instantly; had swept him into the other room as with a broom. Could it be that Joe sometimes did other things in the same sweeping fashion?

She heard a match struck in the next room and the voices of the two men—Joe's, then the other's, the latter at first broken and protestive, but soon rising shrilly. She could hear only fragments. Once she heard the client cry, almost scream, "Joe, I thought Claudine had chased him around there to do me!" And instantly followed Louden's voice:

"Steady, Happy, steady!"

The name "Claudine" startled her, and, although she had had no comprehension of the argot of Happy Fear, the sense of a mysterious catastrophe oppressed her. She was sure that something horrible had happened. She went to the window, touched the shade, which disappeared upward immediately, and lifted the sash. The front of a square building in the courthouse square was bright with lights, and figures were passing in and out of the Main street doors. She remembered that this was the jail.

"Claudine!" The voice of the husband of Claudine was like the voice of one lamenting over Jerusalem.

"Steady, Happy, steady!"

"But, Joe, if they git me, what'll she do? She can't hold her job no longer—not after this."

The door opened, and the two men came out, Joe with his hand on the other's shoulder. The splotches had gone from Happy's face, leaving it an even, deathly white. He did not glance toward Ariel. He gazed far beyond all that was about him, and suddenly she was aware of a great tragedy. The little man's chin trembled, and he swallowed painfully. Nevertheless he bore himself upright and dauntlessly as the two walked slowly to the door, like men taking part in some fateful ceremony. Joe stopped upon the landing at the head of the stairs, but Happy Fear went on, clumping heavily down the steps.

"It's all right, Happy," said Joe. "It's better for you to go alone. Don't you worry. I'll see you through. It will be all right."

"Just as you say, Joe," a breaking voice came back from the foot of the steps—"just as you say."

The lawyer turned from the landing and went rapidly to the window beside Ariel. Together they watched the shabby little figure cross the street below, and she felt an infinite pathos gathering about it as it paused for a moment, hesitating, underneath the arc lamp at the corner. They saw the white face lifted as Happy Fear gave one last look about him; then he set his shoulders sturdily and steadfastly entered the door of the jail.

Joe took a deep breath. "Now we'll go," he said. "I must be quick."

"What was it?" she asked tremulously as they reached the street. "Can you tell me?"

"Nothing; just an old story."

He had not offered her his arm, but walked on hurriedly a pace ahead of her, though she came as rapidly as she could. She put her hand rather timidly on his sleeve, and without need of more words from her he understood her insistence.

"That was the husband of the woman who told you her story," he said. "Perhaps it would shock you less if I told you now than if you heard it tomorrow, as you will. He's just shot the other man."

"Killed him!" she gasped.

"Yes," he answered. "He wanted to run away, but I wouldn't let him. He has my word that I'll clear him, and I made him give himself up."

CHAPTER XVI.

WHEN Joe left Ariel at Judge Pike's gate she lingered there, her elbows upon the uppermost crossbar, like a village girl at twilight, watching his thin figure vanish into the heavy shadow of the maples, then emerge momentarily ghost gray and rapid at the lighted crossing down the street, to disappear again under the trees beyond, followed a second later by a brownish streak as the mongrel heeled after him. When they had passed the second corner she could no longer be certain of them, although the street was straight, with flat, draftsmanlike western directness, both figures and Joe's quick footsteps merging with the night. Still she did not turn to go, did not alter her position nor cease to gaze down the dim street. Few lights shone, almost all the windows of the houses were darkened, and save for the summer murmurs, the faint creak of upper branches and the infinitesimal voices of insects in the grass there was silence—the pleasant and somnolent hush, swathed in which that part of Canaan crosses to the far side of the eleventh hour.

But Ariel, not soothed by this balm, sought beyond it to see that unquiet Canaan whither her old friend bent his steps and found his labor and his dwelling—that other Canaan where peace did not fall comfortably with the coming of night; a place as alien in habit, in thought and almost in speech as if it had been upon another continent. And yet—so strange is the duality of towns—it lay but a few blocks distant.

Here about Ariel as she stood at the gate of the Pike mansion the houses of the good (secure of salvation and daily bread) were closed and quiet, as safely shut and sound asleep as the churches. But deeper in the town there was light and life and merry, evil industry, screened, but strong to last until morning. There were haunts of haggard merriment in plenty; surreptitious chambers where roulette wheels swam beneath dizzied eyes; ill favored bars, reached by devious ways, where quavering voices offered song and were harshly checked. And through the burdened air of this Canaan wandered heavy smells of musk like that upon Happy Fear's wife, who must now be so pale beneath her rouge. And above all this and for all this and because of all this was that one resort to which Joe now made his way—that haven whose lights burn all night long, whose doors are never closed, but are open from dawn until dawn—the jail.

There in that desolate refuge lay Happy Fear, surrendered sturdily by himself at Joe's word. The picture of the little man was clear and fresh in Ariel's eyes, and, though she had seen him when he was newly come from a thing so terrible that she could not realize it as a fact, she felt only an overwhelming pity for him. She was not even horror stricken, though she had shuddered. The pathos of the shabby little figure crossing the street toward the lighted doors had touched her. Something about him had appealed to her, for he had not seemed wicked. His face was not cruel, though it was desperate. Perhaps it was partly his very desperation which had moved her. She had understood Joe when he told her that this man was his friend and comprehended his great fear when he said: "I've got to clear him! I promised him!"

WATER ELOQUENT APPEAL FOR BRIDGES

Some Straight Talk on Improvements, Grain, Market And Crops

BY T. J. HANLEY

Indifference still prevails in the wheat market both generally and locally, even though we are passing through a period when reports of damage to the growing wheat crop come pouring in from every section. While the owners of large elevators of Chicago can control some twenty millions of bushels of wheat in their elevators and with a fair supply in other wheat centers we cannot hope for much advance, unless the crop scares develop to a serious and permanent injury. Local market still remains 73 cents; receipts very light. This is due somewhat to the fact that the farmers have no boats in which to cross the large streams.

Flour

The price of flour has remained remarkably low throughout the year with prospects of continued low prices. Easter flour markets are very dull. Export practically nothing considering the amount of flour manufactured in this country compared to others. A few years ago this country claimed 60 to 80 percent of the wheat exports while now it is ranging about 20 percent. South American republic have been supplying the wheat to the English miller at a much lower figure than the American price, enabling the English miller to control the flour trade in his own country. Consequently, many of the large mills throughout the United States which have been running exclusively on export trade are now sending their solicitors into remote districts to get orders for five and ten barrel lots, and this also increases the competition for the small mill. Coshocton has not much to fear in this respect as the quality of the flour has been such that it satisfies the people who are not desiring strange and unknown brands of flour. Price of flour, according to quality, ranges from $3.25 to $5.00 per barrel.

Bran

It has been a source of regret on the part of the average miller the last few weeks that he could not convert the entire product of his mill into bran in order to satisfy the enormous demand that has recently developed for this class of feed. There are many unfilled orders on the books at the present time for bran with no immediate prospects of getting them completed. Price still remains $1.20 per hundred.

Midds

There is a surplus of midds in stock. The demand is very poor but it will only be a short time until conditions will change making a good demand. While the demand is dull the price remains the same $1.20 per hundred or $22.00 per ton.

Seed Oats

The market is now fairly well supplied with a very nice lot of choice Illinois seed oats specially selected for this market. Every farmer in the county should try to get at least two or three bushels of these oats and if possible get enough to use for the spring seeding. Price 50 cents per bushel. Persons contemplating purchasing should not delay.

Grain Supply

According to the United States Department of Agriculture report, 35 per cent of wheat, 43 per cent of corn and 38 per cent of oats still remain in the hands of the farmer, in the state of Ohio. That would equal about fifteen million bushels yet unsold in Ohio.

The Roads

Once more we are called upon to either stay on the other side or swim over. High water means loss of business to the Coshocton merchant and idleness to those on the rural routes. A gentleman came to town this week on business and on account of the high water is unable to return home. He is still in the city and is offering to pay his assessment for the 16th street bridge. Dave believes in bridges.

Improvements

There are a few people who favor the improvement of roads yet are opposed to the bridges. Some of these have an honest difference of opinion. A great deal more comes from the fact that they do not thoroughly understand the question; that is, they do not understand all the details or the plans of the engineers and the law governing the same. We are satisfied that any fair minded man understanding these points would readily agree with the committee who has the matter in charge. Now, there are a few people who are maliciously and vindictively opposed to everything regardless of merit or helpfulness to his fellow men. To these one might say, "Were you ever at a meeting of the Good Roads association in the last three years?"

Did you hear the able address delivered by Mr. Moore of St. Louis? Did you ever advise with your representative, the county commissioner, as to what should or ought to be done? Did you ever compare the taxes of the county with mud roads with which has macadamized roads? Did you ever neglect your own personal business to pass a petition for your neighbor to sign to bring about an improvement in your locality? One might ask a hundred such questions from the knocker and in every instance he will have to say, "No, sir." When he admits that has done nothing for the good roads, his insidious remarks about other improvements should have no weight. He is just a knocker.

American

This peculiar and distinctively American disease becomes more prevalent day after day. Different [illegible] organs of the body are affected in different individuals, according to their occupations. The man who works with his brain has [illegible] depressed spirits, sleeplessness, poor memory, or is irritable. The man who works with his muscles is sluggish, tired, disinclined to exercise, has dull aches. Both complain of torpid liver, constipation, biliousness, backache, lack of appetite or [illegible] nerve-tone.

All forms of American [illegible] due to one cause—uric acid in the blood. Uric acid is a part of the body's waste matter, which is carried by the blood to the kidneys for expulsion. But when the blood is weakened, the uric acid accumulates and the blood falls more and more behind in its task of carrying it away, the usual result being symptoms of American gout.

LIFE PLANT—There is only one way of curing American gout, and that is by giving the blood the necessary help to completely clear out uric acid. For this very purpose Nature has provided LIFE PLANT. LIFE PLANT goes right into the blood, attacks uric acid and dissolves it so that the blood has no trouble in expelling it. LIFE PLANT quickly restores the system to the energy and power of perfect health. Read what the Hon. John S. Gra[illegible], ex-prosecuting attorney of Tusca[illegible] was County, Ohio, says:

"I would not be deprived of the benefit I have received from the use of Life Plant for a thousand dollars. It has taken away the dull, tired, indifferent sensation that is the result of close application to the duties of my legal profession, and in its stead given the vigor and elasticity of youth."

TEDDY BEAR SAVED LITTLE GIRL'S LIFE

A Teddy bear one of the kind which have brought joy to the hearts of hundreds of little folks all over the territory covered by The Age has just helped save the life of winsome 6-year-old Liola McKenzie in Pittsburg.

She is recovering from the ordeal of having 350 pieces of skin grafted on the tender flesh, left exposed and terribly sensitive by burns. All during her sufferings it seemed that only the touch of the Teddy bear nestling in her arms could give her any relief from the pain which many a grownup could not endure.

Lio was hurrying to get ready for school when the accident happened. Her nightie whisked too close to an open grate and in a moment was a mass of flames. Her limbs and side were badly burned the flames eating their way into the flesh.

At the hospital where she was taken it was found nearly a third of the skin of her body had been charred. Some of the doctors said she could not live, but the attempt was made to save her. Her father, brother and school teacher gave up large patches of cuticle and the resident physician donated over 80 small patches. The operation has been perfectly successful.

REASONABLE

Is Held Published Rate of the Rock Island Road.

Wichita, Kan., March 16. — In the United States court Judge Pollock instructed the jury to bring in a verdict in favor of the Rock Island Railway company in the cases of the Wichita merchants against the company. The merchants alleged that the company's rate on cotton goods from Galveston to Wichita was discriminative and unreasonable, as it was more than double the rate to Kansas City. The court held that the published rate of the company is reasonable, and that had the company accepted payment which had been offered by the merchants on the basis of the Kansas City rate, both parties would have been liable to criminal prosecution.

Co-operation and Capitalism.

By W. H. MALLOCK, Prominent Sociologist.

IF a socialist revolution could be brought about SUDDENLY, there would no doubt be a large number of men whose exceptional abilities were already well known, and the state might no doubt pick out these particular men and COMPEL THEM with some effect to place their knowledge and talents at its service. But this situation would last only for a few years. These men would die and their places would have to be taken BY OTHER MEN who at present are children or who have not yet been born.

How shall these seeds of efficiency be induced to sprout AND BLOOM by a society whose cardinal principle is that no one man shall be permitted to receive a remuneration greater than that which is the indefeasible right of the MOST WORTHLESS?

Co-operation shows beside capitalism as a tortoise shows beside an express train or A PLANT OF ASPARAGUS BESIDE A TOWERING OAK. In Great Britain, for example, all the industries which are co-operative in any socialistic or semisocialistic sense might be suddenly extinguished today without any APPRECIABLE EFFECT on the national welfare as a whole.

MINERS' CHARGE.

Coal-Carrying Roads to Advance Freight Rates.

Washington, March 16.—A conference which is likely to have far-reaching results was held here between members of the interstate commerce commission and representatives of the coal operators' and coal miners' organizations in Indiana and southern Illinois. In addition to a complaint which is to be filed formally with the commission, it is probable that the attorney general will be urged to institute prosecutions against officials of the coal-carrying railroads in Indiana and Illinois for alleged violation of the Sherman anti-trust act It is charged that the coal-carrying railroads operating between southern Indiana and Chicago and the northwest will advance about 10 cents per ton the freight rates on coal. This advance, it is asserted, will affect seriously both the operators and miners

AN OLD STORY TOLD IN A NEW WAY CAN YOU READ IT?

CHAPTER IV.

When the wolf saw he was foiled and could not blow the house of the third little pig in he sat down outside and thought for a while. Fnally he said:

"Little pig, I know where there is a nice field of turnips."

"Where?" asked the little pig.

"Accompany me and I will show you," replied the wolf, not thinking he would be defeated again.

The Shamrock, Erin's Flower.

By MARTIN FITZGERALD.

[Copyright, 1907, by T E McGrath.]

YES, everybody knows that the shamrock grows in Ireland, but not everybody knows just what the shamrock really is Even in Ireland there is much difference of opinion as to the identity of the native emblem. Some hold that the shamrock is one plant, while others argue that it is another Half a dozen plants contend for the honor. In America there are some patriotic Irishmen who will declare that they know exactly what the shamrock is and can distinguish it at sight, but in Ireland several varieties of trefoils or three leaved plants have entered the lists for recognition as the real shamrock, and no man really knows which is which.

As a matter of fact, any trefoil that comes from Ireland is the shamrock when it gets to the United States. It is a three leaved bit of green from the old sod and therefore eminently fit for use in the wearing of the green. The white clover is said to be the most popular candidate for shamrock distinction, though there is also the red clover, while the yellow clover, the wood sorrel, the bird's foot trefoil and a few others present their claims.

Oh, the shamrock, the green, immortal shamrock,
The chosen leaf
Of bard and chief,
Old Erin's native shamrock!

So sang Tom Moore, the immortal, and the shamrock goes, whether it be clover or wood sorrel. The present word shamrock is the generic name in Irish and Gaelic for all trefoils. In the ancient Gaelic tongue and the succeeding dialects it occurs variously as seamrag, seamsog, seamrog, seamroge, shamrote, shamrocke, shamroke, shamrogh, shamroote, shamrug shamroge, seamor-oge and chambroch. It really means "little clover."

We have, of course, little clovers in the United States, but none of us who are Irish will deign to accept any such specimen as a shamrock. In the streets of New York and other cities there are sold on St. Patrick's day three leaved greens purporting to be the true Irish shamrock, but many of them are merely American clover Any Irishman can detect the fraud at a glance, because the shamrock leaf is smaller than the American clover

When the ship comes in from Erin over many a weary mile
It will bear to me a letther from the ould green isle,
It will bear to me a letther, an' it may be moist an' wet,
But 'tis wan in that condition that I most like to get,
For the gur-rul I left behoind me, whoile I make my fortune big,
She will make me love her betther wid a shamrock sprig.

So it happens that thousands of Irish folk in America await with longing the arrival of the ship that reaches New York just before St. Patrick's day —the last to leave Ireland in time to reach the United States so that mail can be distributed by the 17th of March—in the fond hope and confident expectation that the vessel may have on board addressed to them a letter containing a sprig of shamrock from the old soil. This shamrock mail is so bulky that sometimes it swamps the facilities of the New York postoffice, and it is estimated that for every such mail matter sent to New York [illegible] elsewhere in the United States

It is the universal custom for people in Ireland to send their relatives who have emigrated to America these bits of shamrock, so that the loved ones so far away from the native sod may wear the real green of Erin on St. Patrick's day Very often the letters reach this country in quite a bedraggled condition. Usually the shamrock is moistened before sealing the envelope in the hope that it may keep fresh and green on the voyage. Sometimes too much wetness leaks through the envelope and smears the address so that it is impossible to decipher it In that case the letter goes to a certain department, where it is dried out and an attempt is made to read the address. This failing, the poor little shamrock is entombed in the dead letter office at Washington, where it gives what assistance it can in keeping its own grave green.

It is said that there is practically no traffic in the real shamrock in the United States. Such specimens of it as are worn in caps and hats, in buttonholes and on bosoms during the anniversary of the patron saint are, as a rule, extracted from the letters sent by the folks at home. No doubt some dealers now and then get in stock some of the real article, but there is so much clover in the United States which the cows do not devour and it is so cheap and attractive that it is an easy matter to pass it off for shamrock, except in the case of the Irish man or woman direct from the old sod, who discovers the deception at once. It is the "dear little plant" itself which these people demand

There's a dear little plant that grows in our isle;
'Twas St Patrick himself, sure, who set it,
And the sun on his labor with pleasure did smile,
And the tear from his eye ofttimes wet it
It grows through the bog, through the brake, through the mireland,
And they call it the dear little shamrock

A Most Valuable Agent.

The glycerine employed in Dr. Pierce's medicines greatly enhances the medicinal properties which it extracts from native medicinal roots and holds in solution much better than alcohol would. It also possesses medicinal properties of its own, being a valuable demulcent, nutritive, antiseptic and antiferment. It adds greatly to the efficacy of the Black Cherrybark, Bloodroot, Golden Seal root, Stone root and Queen's root, contained in "Golden Medical Discovery" in subduing chronic, or lingering coughs, bronchial, throat and lung affections, for all of which these agents are recommended by standard medical authorities.

In all cases where there is a wasting away of flesh, loss of appetite, with weak stomach, as in the early stages of consumption, there can be no doubt that glycerine acts as a valuable nutritive and aids the Golden Seal root, Stone root, Queen's root and Black Cherrybark in promoting digestion and building up the flesh and strength, controlling the cough and bringing about a healthy condition of the whole system. Of course, it must not be expected to work miracles. It will not cure consumption except in its earlier stages. It will cure very severe, obstinate, hang-on, chronic coughs, bronchial and laryngeal troubles, and chronic sore throat with hoarseness. In acute coughs it is not so effective. It is in the lingering hang-on coughs, or those of long standing, even when accompanied by bleeding from lungs, that it has performed its most marvelous cures.

Prof. Finley Ellingwood, M. D., of Bennett Med. College, Chicago, says of glycerine:

"In dyspepsia it serves an excellent purpose. Holding a fixed quantity of the peroxide of hydrogen in solution, it is one of the best manufactured products of the present time in its action upon enfeebled, disordered stomachs, especially if there is ulceration or catarrhal gastritis (catarrhal inflammation of stomach). It is a most efficient preparation. Glycerine will relieve many cases of pyrosis (heartburn) and excessive gastric (stomach) acidity."

"Golden Medical Discovery" purifies and purifies the blood carrying [illegible] eruptions, scrofulous [illegible] or ulcers.

ST. PATRICK PLANTING THE SHAMROCK.

France has the lily and England the rose. Everybody knows where the shamrock grows.
of Ireland

The legend is a pretty one, and it serves to make patriotic Irishmen feel the old thrill of love of native land when the day of the revered saint comes around The shamrock undoubtedly is the most famous of all national flowers, though the land where it grows is not now a free nation

In very ancient times the shamrock was used by the Irish for food, the men believing that it made them strong and swift runners. The flowers and leaves were sometimes ground into a meal, which became a substitute for other foods in time of famine.

There has long been a belief even in pagan countries and among the Druids that snakes will not go near the trefoil, which makes its use as an emblem of St. Patrick still more appropriate. The clover in all ages has been held in high regard as a Divine emblem, which is evidenced by the still existing belief in the four leaf clover, or tetrafoil, as having power to bring luck

There was a time when English commanders punished Irish soldiers for wearing the shamrock, but that day passed when Queen Victoria ordered the Irish regiments to display the flower as a mark of her appreciation of their bravery in the Boer war

EVERYBODY SHOULD KNOW OF THIS PRESCRIPTION

Anyone Can Mix it at Home
No Suffering One Should Leave it Untried

Cut this out and put in some safe place, for it is valuable and worth more thany anything else in the world if you should have an attack of rheumatism or bladder trouble or any derangement of the kidneys whatever.

The prescription is simple, and can be made up by anyone at home. The ingredients can be had at every good prescription pharmacy and all that is necessary is to shake them well in a bottel.

Here it is: Fluid Extract Dandelion one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup of Sarsaparilla, three ounces.

Take a teaspoonful after each meal and at bed-time. A few doses is said to relieve almost any case of bladder trouble, frequent urination, pain and scalding weakness and backache, pain above the kidneys, etc. It is now claimed to be the only method of curing chronic rheumatism, because of its direct and positive action upon the eliminative tissues of the kidneys. It cleanses these spong-like organs and gives them life and power to sift and strain the poisonous waste matter and uric acid from the blood, relieving the worst forms of Rheumatism and kidney and bladder troubles. The extract dandelion acts upon the stomach and liver and is used also extensively for relieving constipation and indigestion Compound Sarsaparilla cleanses and enriches the blood.

As you or any one of your family, especially the old folks, may be attacked at any time, it would be wise to cut this out and save it.

A well known local druggist authority that this prescription is safe to use at any time. He further states that it is being prescribed by the best physicians in the United States, whose fees for attending a case would amaze the people here

Women Cry "Do Not Kill"

"Do not kill those men in the annex, by placing them in the electric chair. God forbids" is the tenor of a letter sent to Warden Gould of the Ohio penitentiary Saturday morning by two ladies who dwell in Hardscrabble. The two women are devout students of the bible and are greatly wrought up over the fact that four men are confined in the annex whose lives will be taken by the state in expiation of their crimes. Their letter was four pages long and formed an eloquent appeal to let the Lord avenge the wrongs of man.

DELMAS LOST WARM CONTEST

Jerome Gets Abe Hummel's Testimony Before the Jury.

EVELYN CALLED TO THE STAND

Desperate Effort Made to Introduce Copy of Affidavit Miss Nesbit Is Alleged to Have Signed — Alienists Declare Thaw Sane the Night of the Tragedy.

New York, March 16.—In the Thaw trial District Attorney Jerome secured from Abraham Hummel his complete story as to the affidavit which it is alleged Evelyn Nesbit Thaw made in the lawyer's office in 1903, charging Harry K. Thaw with beating her when she had told him that the statement that Stanford White had drugged and ruined her was not true. When the Hummel testimony was offered Mr. Delmas made a specific objection to each question. Justice Fitzgerald overruled every objection and Mr. Delmas had exceptions noted to rulings. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw was called to the stand in the effort of the defense to keep Hummel silent. She declared she had called upon Hummel in his professional capacity and to seek his advice as a lawyer. Stanford White had taken her to the lawyer's office with that end in view. Justice Fitzgerald declared that admitting the proposition of counsel and client, Mrs. Thaw had herself waived the professional privilege by giving her version of what transpired at Hummel's office earlier in the case. The bond of secrecy once removed could not be reestablished.

Hummel's testimony in brief was to the effect that Evelyn Nesbit had told him among other things that Thaw had beaten her when she refused to sign papers he had prepared charging Stanford White with her betrayal; that he had dictated a statement to a stenographer in the presence of Miss Nesbit and Stanford White; that he gave the affidavit to two of his clerks to take to Miss Nesbit in the Madison Square Garden tower, and that the next day the paper was returned to him with Evelyn Nesbit's signature attached. He kept the affidavit until Miss Nesbit called and demanded it. He refused to give it to her and turned it over to Stanford White, advising him to have a photographic copy made. Hummel first said he had himself arranged for photographing the affidavit, and that the photographer came to his office. A few moments later, however, he completely contradicted himself on this point, saying he did not make the arrangements; that the photographer did not come to his office, and that he had not so testified. After Stanford White had the copy made he returned the original of the affidavit, the photographic negatives and the prints made from the negatives to Hummel, who swore that he subsequently delivered the original affidavit to Miss Nesbit and has not seen it since.

In the cross-examination, Attorney Delmas brought admissions that the witness had been convicted in December, 1905, on a charge of conspiracy in the same courtroom in which Thaw is being tried. He further admitted that two indictments for subornation of perjury are pending against him, and that one of these indictments charges him with having caused a false affidavit to be made. Mr. Jerome protested against the witness "being dragged through the humiliating details" of his trial, but Justice Fitzgerald declined to interfere. Mr. Delmas asked Hummel if Mr. Jerome is pressing the charges against him. "He certainly is," said the witness.

Abraham Snydecker, one of Hummel's clerks, testified that he took the affidavit to the tower and handed it to the woman pointed out to him as Miss Nesbit. She kept the affidavit for five minutes and signed it, saying she had read it through.

At the conclusion of this testimony District Attorney Jerome asked permission to introduce the carbon and photographic copies of the affidavit. Mr. Delmas asked that adjournment be taken before arguing as to the admissibility of the affidavit. He said that after reading the paper over, he might not object to its being offered in evidence. "Coming, as it does," he added, "in such questionable shape, we may deem it best to have the paper go in evidence."

District Attorney Jerome also completed his medical testimony, Attorney Delmas declining to cross-examine any of the experts. Dr. Flint, who testified Thursday, formally was excused, and then five other alienists were called, one after another. Each said he was familiar with the hypothetical questions framed by the evidence and prosecution; basing their opinions on these conclusions, they declared that Thaw on the night he shot and killed Stanford White knew the nature and quality of his act and knew that the act was wrong. One of the experts admitted in cross-examination that doctors often disagree as to the form of a person's insanity. Adjournment was taken until Monday.

Coshocton 13 Twin City 4

What was the trouble with the Twin City All Star aggregation which Manager Shaffer had promised to beat Coshocton Friday night? No one seems to know, but the final score was 13 to 4 for Coshocton. Just 17 goals! Carr allowed 13 goals, and an in-and-out, but had 51 stops to his credit. Had he been given anything like the support that Reed was given, the score would have been the other way.

Haight, although unable to cage the ball, gave Carr a number of stops from hard drives straight at him. He did not take many chances but usually passed to Thompson, allowing him to try for goal. Thompson caged the ball three times on passes from Haight. The ball was held in the Twin City field nearly all the time, each member of the local team excelling in clever playing and passing.

The goals were made as follows:

Lives Lost and Property Destroyed. Eleven Dead In Athens County.

Athens, O., March 16.—The raging waters of the Hocking river have claimed seven lives in this city and four elsewhere in the county, and for several days Athens has been cut off from the world, telephone and telegraph wires all being down. Communication by telephone has been restored. Those drowned in Athens are: Ed Sweet, single; Albert Sweet, married, painter; Mr. Turner and wife; Mr. Young; Charles Beahrs, hack driver; Otto Barth, a miller. All the persons, with the exception of Barth, were in one skiff, the boat being in charge of Ed Sweet and Beahrs when it was capsized. The other drownings occurred at Nelsonville, where three lost their lives, and one at Trimble. The roadway of the Baltimore & Ohio railway north of the river broke, allowing the waters to rush into the city. Fifty houses were swept away, and 50 more are tottering on their foundations. A thousand persons are homeless and are being cared for in churches and halls.

Loss to Morgan Lines.

Columbus, O., March 16.—M. S. Connors, general superintendent of the Hocking Valley, the Toledo & Ohio Central, the Kanawha & Michigan and the Zanesville & Western railways, estimated the damage by flood to those lines in southern Ohio at about $100,000. The Hocking Valley is unable to run trains south of Enterprise, the Ohio Central is blocked at Corning and the Kanawha & Michigan is tied up both in Ohio and West Virginia by the high water. Through train service on the Zanesville & Western has been restored.

Bordenkircher Murder Trial

et, as the sheriff has been giving her reasonable liberties about the court house.

Judge Nicholas said that he thought that it would be better to call another witness and allow the child to become used to the surroundings even if she had to be taken back to Columbus and brought here again Monday. Judge Voorhees said he thought it was all right for the little girl to wander about the court room but that the state objected to her coming in contact with Mrs. Bordenkircher or any persons interested in the case. The defendant's attorneys said they did not expect that she should come to their side but Mr. Glenn had suggested that the child be permitted to come to its mother until its greif should be assuaged.

At ten minutes past nine she was lifted from the stand by Chief Maple. She was taken up on the judge's bench and stood at the side of his chair while he put his arm around her and talked to her. He finally got her interested in some of the photographs of the Bordenkircher cottage which were offered in evidence. The familiar scenes of the home where she used to live seemed to drive away her sorrow and a moment later she walked over by the clerk's desk with the photographs in her arms. It cannot be said whether any of the jurors shed a tear but it is safe to say that they had difficulty in keeping the tears back. It was a scene to move most any man.

Lieutenant P. B. Johnston

was called. Prosecutor McDowell plunged at once into the conversation which took place at the Bordenkircher home during the evening after the shooting. The story of "the Dutchman in the hotel at Lancaster" was again brought up. The witness said he remembered hearing Mrs. Bordenkircher tell something about the Dutchman but could not remember how she told it but that it was a smutty story and was told by her in speaking of where she stood when the shot was fired. Judge Voorhees said that while the language might not be such as would be indulged in society it was necessary to get at the facts in cases of this kind and that he thought it was the duty of the stenographers to remain and take whatever was said. But there was difficulty in getting Mr. Johnson to remember just what was said there that night and finally the three girls who were taking the testimony retired from the court room and enough of the story was elicited from the witness to give the jury the substance of it Then the stenographers returned. The witness stayed at the Bordenkircher home till about 11 o'clock. He didn't notice Mrs. Bordenkircher particularly and didn't observe whether she was depressed or not. He was asked about the conversation he had with Mrs. Bordenkircher but Judge Voorhees objected to this question. Mr. Wheeler argued that the state had put in talks with the defendant and that the defense should have the same right. Judge Nicholas said that the fact that the state had opened one conversation wouldn't justify the defense in opening another unless it was a part of the same conversation. Mr. Glenn argued that the subject matter of the conversation with Mapel and the conversation with Johnston were the same. Judge Nicholas excluded the conversation. The witness was asked if he saw Mrs. Bordenkircher when he was called there that evening about six o'clock. He said she was sitting at the dining room table. He was asked whether she was crying or not, but Judge Voorhees objected saying that a defense couldn't be made on cross examination.

After Lieut. Johnston left the stand, the little girl was called again. Judge Nicholas soothed her and tried to comfort her. He did not put her on the stand but called her to his side on the bench. The child's lip quivered and her eyes suffused with tears. She sobbed and leaned her head over on the judge's arm.

"Gentlemen," said the court to the prosecution, "we'll not put this little girl on the stand—not yet She can't talk about it just now."

The accused woman again buried her face in her handkerchief

The defense called the police lieutenant back to the stand.

Did you hear Maple and Ida Mae talking about the shooting?

Yes, just as he came in I was there about 10 minutes before Mapel came in

There was a quarter hour's fencing to get the exact run of conversation by attorneys of both sides.

McClelland Osler.

was called. He is a piano tuner and was tuning the piano at the Bordenkircher residence Xmas afternoon. He was there from 1 till about 4. He named as well as he could remember who was there. He did not know them well.

Do you know Rabbi?

Who?

Rabbi.

No sir

"Let's see' said the court, "that's Hebrew for father."

was called. He said he was also a piano tuner and helped Osler that day. He was asked if Turner was there.

I don't know him.

Do [illegible] Rabbi, a pottery work[illegible]

er?

No sir.

George Guinther

He testified he helped find the gun in the cess pool.

Sam Clark

Who is a farmer, was next. On Xmas day he and "a friend of his," a lady, went to the Bordenkircher home. He was there after the shooting, not before.

He was also there later—first at about 5 o'clock, second about 7:30, the same friend was with him both times.

The second time Fannie Jacobs and Jacob Klineknecht were with him as well as his friend.

He had known Mrs. Bordenkircher about all his life. She had lived on Second street before she moved to Vine street.

Had you known the general reputation of that house on Vine street? Objection.

At this time Judge Voorhees announced the state could not complete their case until Monday anyhow. The question of the character of the house gives promise of long discussion. The court suggested a discussion Monday morning before the jury came in. Both sides will hand in authorities on the question and Monday morning is set for a legal threshing of the matter.

Judge Nicholas declared the case was going to take more time than they had anticipated.

Mr. Clark was excused till 8:30 Monday morning

The prosecution again asked for the child, but the court decided she was not yet in condition.

George Fretague's testimony that the gun was handed him from the cess pool was admitted in short order.

At 11:08 the court dismissed the jury. Told them to go to their homes over Sunday and adjured them to say and listen to nothing about the case.

The jury is to report and testimony to resume Monday at 1 p. m. Monday morning the attorneys will discuss the admission of testimony regarding the reputation of the Bordenkircher home on Vine street.

The witnesses were discharged till Monday.

Mrs Bordenkircher's attorneys asked the court to grant Mrs Bordenkircher half an hour with her little adopted daughter The state objected to a private conference between them. Rev. Fr. Synan was asked to be present with them. He willingly consented and after further parley the woman the child and Fr. Synan retired to the witness room. The child will spend today and tonight with the prelate at his residence.

Late Friday Afternoon

Chief Mapel was on the stand Friday from 2.30 until 4:20 o'clock. As there was only ten minutes court adjourned until 8:30 Saturday morning. The chief was asked concerning what Lieut. Johnston had said concerning where Mrs. Bordenkircher stood when she was supposed to have fired the shot.

"Where did she say she was standing when she fired the shot?"

Chief Mapel explained to the court that she hadn't said that she fired it He was then asked where she stood when the shot was fired. He said she was standing near the sink.

The chief testified that he found five cartridges in the revolver and that four were loaded and one empty. One was empty and one looked as though it had been snapped by the hammer.

Then Prosecutor McDowell questioned the witness concerning the conversation that took place at the Bordenkircher home between six o'clock and eleven the night of the shooting.

Reminded of The Story

Chief Mapel said that when Mrs. Bordenkircher was speaking of where she had stood when the shot was fired she said it reminded her of the story of a Dutchman at Lancaster. The defense objected to this testimony but Judge Nicholas ruled that it was admissable, giving the lady stenographers the permission to retire if they desired to do so as there was an indication that it would not be fit for their ears. Prosecutor McDowell asked the chief more about the story but the chief couldn't remember any more of it The prosecutor who was present at the Bordenkircher house that evening and heard the conversation, tried to refresh the witness' memory and asked him if the story wasn't something about a Dutchman in a hotel and something about a sock. Finally the prosecutor was permitted to take the chief into the witness room to see if he could remember the story but the chief could not and the matter was dropped. The chief testified that that evening Mrs. Bordenkircher and seemed to fret about what she had done and at other times she would be more cheerful. There was considerable talking and story telling that night and the chief said he thought the prosecutor had taken part in the story telling. He said Mrs. Bordenkircher had told her that her husband had brought some whiskey home and that they had some beer there that day.

Fished For Story

In

The Cross-Examination

Mr. Wheeler developed the statement from Chief Mapel that the revolver will not stand cocked but that it can be discharged by pulling the trigger. It is a Harrington & Richards. The shell which was discharged had a deeper impression in it than the one which was merely snapped. The witness said there was blood in the bathtub; also on the [illegible] of Mrs Bordenkircher's hair and on her [illegible] waist. Her hair was a kind of [illegible] This ended the questioning and court adjourned.

Beautiful Woman

en more beautiful than the one upon whom Chicago bases its claims. For the fair fame of the State and Coshocton, The Age has now entered the contest. There are no prettier maids or handsomer matrons in this glorious old commonwealth than live right here in Coshocton and The Age intends to prove it.

The Age asks for the photographs of the beautiful women of this city. Write the names and addresses plainly on the backs and send them to this office. They will be cared for scrupulously and returned in good condition at the close of the contest. Actresses and professional models are barred; the object is to find the most beautiful women in the Ohio homes.

As the pictures come in a few will be published from time to time to add interest to the contest. They will appear in The Age and the Cleveland Sunday Leader..

Many women would be disinclined to send in their own photographs. Their friends and relatives should do that for them. Send the phographs of your most beautiful relative or friend to the editor of The Age.

Ohio must not fall in this contest. It not only has Illinois for an opponent, but several other of the greatest states in the union. To this city may fall not only the acknowledged honor of possessing the loveliest woman in Ohio, but the most beautiful woman in the United States. It is well worth striving for. The chance is in the hands of the people of Coshocton.

Send in the photographs.

TWO CASES GO TO APRIL

The criminal cases against Shrigley and Sprague which were set for trial on March 25 were continued to the April term of court by Judge Nicholas Friday afternoon with the consent of Mr. Wheeler, who represents both defendants, and Mr. McDowell who represents the state. Judge Nicholas had just received a telophone message from Judge Wickham at Newark stating that Judge Seward, whose wife is ill, had left for California with her and that as they had three criminal cases, one for second degree murder, the week of the 25th they would like to have Judge Nicholas come over and help out. The two cases for trial here were therefore continued without date in order that Judge Nicholas may assist with the work in Licking county.

TROTTMAN NOT YET APPREHENDED

Zanesville All Excited Over Otsego Man's Escape

There is not yet any news of Geo. Trottman, whose escape from the Zanesville court house was told of in Friday's Age. Speaking of the event, the Zanesville Signal says:

George W. Trottman, the Otsego farmer, who was to have been tried on an indictment charging forgery in common pleas court Friday morning left the court room shortly after 9 o'clock while preliminary matters were being arranged and although court officers and attorneys searched for him until noon Friday, no trace of him had been found. He had been out on bond and had appeared in court promptly at 9 o'clock. A half hour later he had gone and Judge Frazier and the jury were left "waiting."

Court bailiffs. Acheson and Geiger, and Attorneys Lemert and Haines, his counsel, at once started in search. Though they worked most diligently, absolutely no trace of the man had been discovered three hours later. Trottman's bondsmen, John L. Trottman and James Davis, were present in court. They had signed the bond, which was $400.

A motion to quash the indictment, which charged the forgery of the names of Jacob Thresh and Robert Cowden, to a note on the Zanesville bank for $500, when the case was called Friday morning. This was over ruled out and the demurrer to the indictment was filed. Perhaps half an hour was consumed in arguing this. Judge Frazier also overruled this and ordered the case to proceed to trial. When it was discovered that Trottman was missing.

Trottman's band was formally declared forfeited in common pleas court at 1:30 o'clock Friday afternoon A capias for his arrest was also issued to Sheeriff George Smitley and all the surrounding towns and cities have been notified to look out for him. The 52 witnesses, who had been summoned in the case were excused until Saturday morning.

Trottman seems to have disappeared as completely as if the earth had swallowed him. One unconfirmed report had it that he had been seen at noon Friday going in the direction of his brother's home, near Otsego. It was feared by some of his friends that he had thrown himself into the waters of the swollen river, but this belief is not entirely warranted.
